

Selected Poetry.

We reproduce, as appropriate to the time, the stirring words of the

The Marching Song.
Ye sons of Freedom wake to glory,
Hark, hark, what myriads bid you rise,
Your children, wives and grandfathers hoar—
Behold their tears and hear their cries!
Shall hateful tyrants, mischief breeding,
With hilling hosts, a ruffian band,
Affright and desolate the land,
While peace and liberty lie bleeding?
To arms, to arms, ye brave!
Th' avenging sword unsheath!
March on! March on!

All hearts resolved on Victory or death!
Now, now, the dangerous storm is rolling,
Which treacherous Kings confederate raise!
The dogs of war, let loose, are howling,
And lo! our walls and cities blaze!
And shall we basely view the ruin,
While lawless force, with guilty stride,
Spread desolation far and wide,
With crimes and blood his hand embracing?
To arms, to arms, ye brave!
Th' avenging sword unsheath!
March on! March on!

All hearts resolved on Victory or death!
With luxury and pride surrounded,
The vile insatiable despots dare,
Their thirst of gold and power unbated,
To mete and vend the light and air!
Like beasts of burden would they load us,
Like gods, would bid their slaves adore;
But man is man, and who is more?
Then shall they longer lash and goad us?
To arms, to arms, ye brave!
Th' avenging sword unsheath!
March on! March on!

All hearts resolved on Victory or death!

Humorous.

An Irishman.
Being invited by a deacon to accompany him to church, compelled with great alacrity. His pious friend seated Pat in his pew, and with pious visage and austere aspect, awaited the commencement of the services. Pat looked about him, and observing none of the paraphernalia belonging to his peculiar mode of worship, whispered inquiringly of the deacon:

"Is this a heretic church?"
"Be still, my good man; don't disturb the meeting," replied the urbane but severe minister.

"Faith, an' I'll do that same." Presently the elder commenced his prayer, which so excited the deacon that he slouched in the fervor of his heart, "Glory to God!"

"How'd yer whisht," cried the indignant Celt.

The worthy preacher stopped, and looked around for the cause of his disturbance. Seeing no one, he began again.

"Will ye be quiet, ye thafe of the world, and not be disturbing the people?" giving him a dig in the ribs.

The minister again stopped, and requested some one to remove the profane intruder.

"Bedad an' I will," sniffling the action to the word, he collared the offending but innocent worshipper, and pitched him out of the vestibule. Returning with considerable pride, he addressed the minister:

"There, plaze yer rivoence, I've put the blackguard out, bad cess to him."

"Draw Poker" on the Ohio.

On a recent pleasure trip, says the Indianapolis Sentinel, we were amused at the description of an old gentleman from Illinois gave of a game of bluff or draw poker. From his innocent manner we were confident that he knew no more about it than his language indicated and we formed a very favorable opinion of the morality of the community in which he resides. Here is the gentleman's description: "There are four well dressed young men at the table; one of them had a bunch of small, nice pictured pasteboards about the size of an envelope, though not so large; some of the spots were red and some had pictures of women, and some had only spots on them; some of the spots were red and some black; he mixed them altogether, and laid them down and said 'cut,' but I did not see any knife; the one on the right took off about a dozen; the fellow who had mixed them then put the deck at the bottom of the bunch, and then commenced throwing them around with the pictures side down, giving each man three—each then looked carefully at his pasteboards, being careful that none of the others saw his pictures, and then each put down a dollar and said he would bet the best picture, or the best pasteboard, I don't know exactly which. The man with the bunch then said, 'How many more pasteboards do you want?' and they each gave back two or three, and received the same number off the bunch. They all looked carefully again, and two of them said they would 'pass out,' but they sat still. The other two each put down a five dollar note and one of them said 'Kings up, duces down,' but I didn't see anything go up or down; the other said, 'Three queens,' and he took the money. I suppose one of them must be a lunatic on the way to the asylum, and the others are his friends trying to amuse him. I hope they will keep quiet until we get into port."

We express the hope that the old gentleman arrived safe at his home in the moral city of Chicago.

Law School of Richmond College.

We mentioned some weeks ago that the Board of Trustees of Richmond College had appointed of their number Messrs. James Alfred Jones, Judge John A. Meredith, Dr. J. L. M. Curry, and Judge Joseph Christian, a committee to make arrangements for the establishment of a Law School in connection with the college.

This committee made their report to the Board of Trustees at a meeting held yesterday afternoon. It was resolved to adopt the recommendations of the committee and begin the Law School on the 1st of October. Judge James D. Halyburton, William Green, Esq., and J. L. M. Curry, LL. D., were appointed professors of the Law School, and we are pleased to announce that these gentlemen have signified their acceptance of the professorships. Dr. Curry will lecture on constitutional and international law, and Messrs. Halyburton and Green on all the other departments of the law.

A more accomplished and able corps of professors for this department could not have been selected in the State nor outside of it in this country.

Dr. Curry was a leading practitioner at the bar of Alabama before entering into the ministry. Judge Halyburton was for many years Judge of the United States and Confederate courts held in this district. Mr. Green is recognized by the bench and lawyers of the State as emphatically at the head of the bar. All of these gentlemen are also of established reputation as accomplished scholars.

Richmond is par excellence the point for the establishment of a successful law school. She possesses the advantages of all the courts, from the highest to the lowest, and the largest law library in the State. Students in this school will be enabled to follow the pleadings and practice in the profession to which they intend to devote themselves, and not driven to the totally inadequate resource of moot-courts. This is a step in the right direction, and we hope soon to see Richmond College the rival of Harvard in the law and other branches of learning.

The democrats of Clarion County, Pennsylvania, have flazoned the following political creed upon their banner: "We believe this to be a white man's Government, formed by white men for the benefit of white men and their posterity forever; and so believing, we are opposed to the fifteenth amendment, which was conceived in iniquity, and adopted by force at the point of the bayonet, in opposition to the wishes of the people and in violation of the Constitution, not only of the State of Pennsylvania, but of the United States."

It is a good sight to see the color of health upon a man's face, but not to see it all concentrated in his nose.

England Preparing for War.

For some weeks past, the military authorities of England have been busy preparing inventories of all the munitions of war which they contained. The available portions, after being passed by a board of survey, have been, or are still being, re-shipped to England. The remainder, however, especially the ordnance, this and shell, amounting to nearly 7,000 tons, is to be held by order of the War Department, for the use of the Government of the United States, should the need arise.

The control officers had instructions to furnish it next month. Within the last month or two, ships have been sent to England, and have been extraordinarily large. Over 100,000 tons of goods have been sent to England, and the quantity of goods at a time to have caused fearful destruction had any of the usual precautions been relaxed, and the power by any accident exploded. It is stated that mounted and spare guns, together with a large quantity of ammunition, will remain here, to be turned over shortly, with the ordnance and fortifications, to the Government of Canada. The object of Sir George H. Carter's recent visit was officially, as Minister of Militia, to inspect this property before it was turned over.

It is stipulated by the Imperial authorities, on a condition of turning over the fort and its supplies, that a garrison of 200 men shall be at Kingston. This will have to be drawn from the militia of Canada, and we already see a partial provision made for its establishment in the organizing here of two companies in connection with the Red River battalions.

The Gazette takes the earliest opportunity to protest against any attempt to establish a standing army for Canada at the cost of the Dominion.—British Wagon, July 30.

Island's sympathy with France in the war against Prussia is a troublesome specter for England. It is a specter, too, that will not down. So the Prussian journals of London would fain explain it away, or even all good people against this specter in an evil spirit. The "Thunderer" brands it as the spirit of rampant anti-Protestantism—hated of German Protestants. No doubt, the "leading journal" would like to say that hating Protestants is to the soul, but impartial lookers on know that this Irish sympathy with France is but another manifestation of Ireland's responsible conflict with England. England sympathizes with Prussia, and that is reason enough, the Irish think, for their sympathizing with France. There was no such manifestation in the Prussian war against Austria and South Germany, though the latter States are mostly Catholic. During the Sepoy revolt, the fervid Celt openly expressed his sympathy with England's rebellion subjects. Cordes, that, too, according to the reasoning of the London Times, would have been "due to the influence of Catholicism," favoring Buddhism rather than Anglicanism.

A GREAT LEAP.—The Buffalo Courier says that the contemplated leap of Mr. Frank Thorne from the new suspension bridge at Niagara Falls, will positively take place on Saturday afternoon, August 12, at 4 o'clock. He jumps from the center of the new bridge, and will descend a distance of one hundred and ninety-five feet. By actual experiment it has been ascertained that bodies of any material weight will reach the water from the bridge in less than five seconds. A stone weighing about two hundred pounds descended in about three seconds. An exploring cable made the trip, head first, in a little over five seconds. Another dog of a more progressive nature, probably, made the trip in a little less time, but expired on the spot.

Mr. Frank Thorne, the young man who is to make this perilous journey, is a Buffalo boy of about twenty-five years of age, of good stature, modest demeanor and courageous disposition. He has tried his head at jumping more than once, and all ways with success. A few years since he made a leap into the Allegheny River in Pennsylvania of about ninety feet. He has tested his lungs, and finds that he can hold his breath for thirty seconds, which will give him ample time to reach the water, descend thirty feet and come up again. The only difficulty that is experienced is the task of keeping himself upright in the descent. If he can do that, and he undoubtedly can for so short a time, his success and the $10,000 he is to receive are certain.
